

Hunan University (HNU)

Hunan University (HNU) is situated in Changsha, a renowned historical and cultural city. It is adjacent to the rippling Xiangjiang River on its front and picturesque Yuelu Mountain at its back. It is reputed as an "Ancient Millenarian Academy and Famous Centennial University". Originated from Yuelu Academy, founded in 976 AD., HNU is an institution of higher education run at a permanent location for the longest time in China. It has maintained cultural education for thousands of years and illustrated an embodiment of China's higher education development and rare history in the world's higher education. HNU was reconstructed into the Hunan Institute of Higher Learning in 1903; renamed Hunan University in 1926; and was designated as one of the 16 state universities in 1937.
